THE LATE GEN. HOOD.

JEFFERSON COUNTY, TENN.,

Sept. 6, 1879. MR. EDITOR: The recent death of Gen. J. B. Hood, of yellow fever, at New Orleans, recalls a brief visit to Tate Spring last summer, while that gentleman and his interesting family were among the guests at that delightful resort. It recalls also some patriotic and manly opinions expressed by the General that were in such striking contrast to those held and uttered by many of the political warriors of the Confederacy, as to re-kindie a hope in the minds of several ex-Union soldiers who were present, that those who once met as deadly enemies in battle, may yet become fraternally and politically united in defense of the glory and honor of the republic. While seated in the midst of a coterie of eager listeners, reciting some of the incidents of the war, Gen. Hood was called upon by a stranger introducing himself as a private soldier who had served under his (Hood's) command. The stranger, after presenting the General with a fine peach, which he said was of a variety he called "Jeff. Davis;" complained of the hard times he had and the freedom of the "niggers, (ne of course never owned a nigger). cursed negro suffrage, and expressed

As one looked into the eyes of the General, or noticed with what tender affection each little Hood was adjusted, he quickly recalled the words of the late Bayard Taylor:

' The bravest are the tenderest, The loving are the daring " CORPORAL.

A Concurrence of Opinion. A map-agent went into a manufacturing establishment in Norwich, Ct, recently, with an egotistical idea that his power of reading faces was a great aid to him in his business. He looked the shop over, and fixed upon a common-place looking workman, with an intelligent face, as the individual up on which to begin business. Approaching the man, he touched a spring and down dropped an elaborate map of Connecticut, with its towns, railroads, and rivers all properly located. Then it was earnestly and comprehensively described by the glib agent, who briefly stated the advantage of such an educational chart to the possessor, etc.

The workman, looking up very innocently from his work, remarked:

"That is mighty pretty! Should think it would be first-rate in a family!

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever,

This is a compound remedy, prepared with scientific skill from vegetable ingredients, which rarely fails to cure the severest cases of Chills a remedy the necessities of the people in malarious districts demand. Its great superiority over any other medicine yet discovered for the cure of Intermittents is, that it contains no quinine or mineral, and those who take it are free from danger of quinism or any injurious effects, and are as healthy after using it as before. It has been extensively employed during the last thirty years in the treatment of these distressing disorders, and so unvarying has been its success it has gained the reputation of being infal-It can, therefore, be safely recommended as a sure remedy and specific for the Fever and Ague of the West, and the Chills and Fever of the South. It counteracts the miasmatic poison in the blood, and frees the system from its influence, so that fever and ague, shakes or chills, once broken up by it, do not return until disease is again contracted. The great variety of disorders which arise from the irritation of this poison, such as Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Spienic Affections, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and derange-of the Stomach, all of which become intermittent or periodical, have no speedier remedy than Aver's Ague Cure, which cures them all alike, and protects the system from future attacks. As munities where Fever and Ague prevails, as on the first approach of the premonitory symptoms. Travellers and temporary residents are thus enabled to defy these disorders, and few will ever suffer if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity, it is an excellent remedy; it stimulates this organ into healthy activity, and produces many remarkable cures where other medicines fail. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
